Counsel and Chair, Intellectual Property Practice Group

Jon Huntington has practiced law in Maine for twenty-five years. His practice is focused on intellectual property representing individuals and businesses engaged in general commerce and many creative and artistic enterprises. He is widely experienced in trademark and copyright law in the U.S. and other jurisdictions including the creation and maintenance of trademark rights, registration in the United States and internationally including China and the European Union, licensing, and various adversary proceedings in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. In his copyright practice, he represents mainly visual artists, authors, musicians, and other creative interests in the development and negotiation of performance and publication agreements, assignments, and licenses under the U.S. Copyright Act. His practice includes copyright and trademark infringement opinions and litigation in state and federal courts. He is a licensed attorney in Maine and Washington. He has chaired the boards of Spectrum Generations (Central Maine Area Agency on Aging) and the Androscoggin Yacht Club and was appointed as a member of the Maine Arts Commission in 2013. He resides in Wayne.
